Four Slain In Gun Fight Near Coal Mine

7 WOUNDED IN NIGHT BATTLE IN TENNESSEE

20 Others Injured as Union, Non-Union Men Exchange Fire at Roadside.

TWO OFFICIALS KILLED

Shotguns, Sub-Machine Guns Used In Brief Encounter at Picketed Mine.

(By United Press)

MIDDLESBORO, Ky.—Four men, including two company officers were shot and killed and seven others were wounded when union and non-union miners fought a violent gun battle early today near the Fork Ridge Coal and Coke company mine across the state line in the rough mountainous country of northern Tennessee.

Between 15 and 20 other men received minor injuries and were given first aid treatment in hospitals here.

Approximately 250 men participated in the fighting which took place about 2 a. m., on a narrow mountain road leading from this southeastern Kentucky community to Fork Ridge in Clayborne county, Tennessee, near where the mine is located.

Union pickets, members of the United Mine Workers (CIO) some of whom were said to have come from Harlan county, Kentucky, where there have been two outbreaks of violence during the current bituminous shutdown, went to the region to prevent non-union miners employed on the night shift from entering the mine.

They met several carloads of non-union workers accompanied by two company officers and a deputy sheriff at a point where a mountain road winds through a hollow. A short pitched battle followed.

The dead were identified as C. W. Rhodes, 45, Middlesboro, president and general manager of the company; E. W. Silvers, 48, Fork Ridge, vice president and treas-

Starting Back-To-Work, Signing Steel Pact

Former strikers at the Ford Motor company's River Rouge plant are pictured in the photo at the left awaiting their turn at the time clock as they returned to their jobs after the United Auto Workers union and Ford officials agreed on a compromise settlement. In the photo at the right J. L. Perry, left, president of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation is pictured after signing a contract at Pittsburgh with the steel workers organizing committee which awards pay raises and more liberal vacations to 240,000 workers of the United States Steel corporation. CIO president Philip Murray is seen affixing his signature to the contract agreement which averted a threatened work stoppage at big steel's vast empire.

MORE STEEL WORKERS GET PAY INCREASE

Smaller Mills Follow Lead of Large Producers, Grant Ten Cent Boost.

PRICE RISE FEARED

Soft Coal Negotiations Still on; Perkins Meets With Leaders in New York.

(By Associated Press)

Wage increases of 10 cents an hour were effective today for an increasing majority of the nation's steelworkers, as smaller mills followed the lead set yesterday by United States Steel corporation and other large producers.

While the wage hikes and other concessions swept away most of the rough spots in steel-labor relations, the soft coal tie-up remained in effect despite the appearance of Secretary of Labor Perkins before management and union representatives deadlocked on terms of a new contract.

About 432,000, or more than two-thirds of the steelworkers in the nation, were informed by last night that their pay envelopes would be $4 fatter each week.

United States Steel, with 240,000 employes, led the way. Bethlehem, with 90,000, followed, as did Republic Steel, 50,000; Youngstown Sheet and Tube, 26,000; Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., 17,000; Otis Steel (Cleveland, 6,000 and Acme Steel Chicago), 2,800.

Even before the move by United States Steel corporation, the National Steel Corporation had raised the wages of 20,000 employes by 10 cents an hour, and similar increases had gone to about 5,000 workers in smaller mills. In all, more than 456,000 men have been affected.

The new basic steel wage became $5.80 a day, retroactive to April 1. Other steel companies were expected to fall into line rapidly.

Capture Vital Town on Greek Northern Line

Defenders Retire as Nazis Penetrate 40 Miles Beyond Border; British Claim Stemming of Offensive On Right; Piraeus Bombed.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg invaders have cracked the point of the V-shaped Allied defense line in Greece, captured the key town of Phlorina in a drive from Bitolj Pass, and forced the British and Greeks to retire to a deeper front in the center, it was acknowledged in Athens today.

Hitler's high command reported that Nazi troops occupied Ptolemais and nearby Kozane, 40 miles south of the Albanian-Yugoslav border junction.

If true, this means that the Allies suffered at least a 40-mile setback before taking a new stand.

Near Ptolemais, 30 British armered cars were reported destroyed.

In Yugoslavia, the high command said German and Italian troops were speeding the "pursuit and encirclement" of remnants of the Serb army, which was said to be putting up "localized" resistance in the Mostar-Sarajevo sector.

On the right flank, the British announced better success in stemming the Nazi onslaught.

British troops were said to have hurled back a series of assaults by German panzer columns, in the Mt. Olympus sector in eastern Greece.

Athens dispatches said that the Nazis were advancing into the Aegean kingdom on the left after occupying Phlorina, the northern hinge of the old Allied defense line, and that the Greeks were battling the Germans near Ptolemais.

In Rome, Italian newspaper circles received a Berlin report that Yugoslavia had asked for an Armistice with the Axis. There was immediate official confirmation.

The Greek high command acknowledged that the Germans were advancing in the center toward two towns 40 miles inside Greece—Kozane and Siatista—south of the Albanian and Yugoslav frontiers and 30 miles south of Phlorina.

A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch said that the Germans were moving also toward Klisura, Albanian town near Tepeleni, on the Greek western front.

The Greek high command said that Greek forces had withdrawn from the Corizza (Koritza) sector, in southeast Albania, and that "the enemy discovered the withdrawal

STIMSON SEES ANOTHER AEF

Warns Army Must Be ready To Fight Outside of This Hemisphere In Talk.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of War Stimson today told congress that the U. S. army must be trained to fight outside the western hemisphere and assured the nation that progress of the huge rearmament drive is running eight to 12 months ahead of the World war period.

Directly referring to the possibility of another American expeditionary force in discussing the "complicated technique" of modern warfare, Stimson said:

"Furthermore, our forces must be prepared for the possibilities of war in many and varied terrains, it being quite uncertain in what part of North or South or Central America, or even possibly other regions it ultimately may be necessary to use them in the defense of this country and its possessions."

Stimson testified before a special senate committee investigating all phases of the defense program, headed by Sen. Truman (D) Mo. as Secretary of the Navy Knox and Donald M. Nelson, defense director of purchasing were called before other committees probing preparedness work.

Stimson was highly optimistic regarding the final outcome of the defense program, but he warned private industry that from this point on it has great responsibility, and that the training of "many successive installments of men" may last as long as five years.

Knox was called by the house

Two Charged With Murder In Daring Sing Sing Escape

OSSINING, N. Y.—(INS)—Two confessed accomplices, who yesterday aided a trio of convicts in a daring Sing Sing prison break which cost four lives, were charged with first degree murder in Ossining police court early today.

The two accomplices, William Wade, 32, and Edward Kiernan, 33, both of New York City, were rushed into court after admitting to state police they smuggled three .38 calibre pistols into the prison together with three sets of handcuffs.

It was with these three revolvers that the small band of convicts, led by John Waters, 30, shot their way out of Sing Sing in a bloody foray that gave two of the felons seven hours of liberty and resulted in the death of Waters.

The two survivors of the daring escape, the biggest one in Sing Sing's 126-year history, Joseph Riordan, 25, and Charles McGale, 45, were arraigned on first degree murder charges in Ossining police court last night 10 hours after their capture by state troopers in a woods across the Hudson river from the prison.

$650,000 Rail Spans On 30-N Oked By U.S.

Federal Order Paves Way For State To Begin Construction Work on Erie and B. and O. Grade Eliminations.

Government approval of plans for the Baltimore and Ohio and Erie railroad grade separations on U. S. 30-N in Mansfield and Richland county and installation of new pavement between the projects was announced today by Hal G. Sours, state director of highways.

Sours said that the projects, which will cost an estimated $650,000, were approved by the U. S. Public Roads administration.

Informed of the federal sanction of the B. and O. overhead project on West Fourth street, Mayor William J. Locke announced he would, if necessary, call a special meeting of council to pass a resolution for the citys final approval of the project.

Although council has agreed to contribute $31,000 for the construction of the $249,000 overpass, the state has asked that final approval of the construction plans and a guarantee of action to raise the city's share be included in a final resolution.

The state highway department, which will contribute $13,625 toward the construction, has indicated that no advertisements could be made for bids on materials and labor until Mansfield has given its final approval.

Council, meeting last week in a special session to consider the shorter police week ordinance, was unable to take action on a final resolution because of the absence of City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr. Mayor Locke said today that he would ask Ward to draw up the resolution immediately and that he would call a special council meeting to pass the resolution.

Richland county commissioners have agreed to pay $40,000 of the $262,290 to be spent for the Erie underpass.

The B. & O. overhead will also provide a bridge over Touby's Run.

About a mile of Route 30-N between the two projects will be repaved to provide adequate facilities for connecting the new pavement at the widened highway where the rail lines passed. Estimated cost of the mile of pavement is about $110,000.

CLOSE VIADUCT

City Workers To Replace Floor on Mulberry Street Span.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton announced today that the Mulberry street viaduct will be closed for about two weeks starting Thursday to allow city workmen to replace the bridge flooring.

The improvement, which will cost an estimated $1,500, will consist of replacing the plank flooring and of spreading a black top surface. Crafton said that the present planking had worked loose and presented not only a traffic hazard but also a nuisance to nearby residents by excessive noise caused by the timbers.

C. H. Hebel, street superintendent, said that it would take about two weeks to complete the resurfacing. He pointed out that the present flooring, laid about five years ago, had not been sufficiently waterproofed to resist changeable weather.

GIVES O. K. ON STAMP PLAN

Commissioners Approve New Method of Distributing Food to Indigents.

County commissioners today had approved the federal government's stamp plan for distributing food to Richland county indigents and were assured of the cooperation of bankers and grocerymen in putting the plan into operation.

William M. Walsh, Cleveland, assistant administrator for this area, who was in the city yesterday to outline the program to city and county officials and business men, said the county contract will go to Washington immediately for final approval.

"We should hear from it within 15 days, and if it is approved, the plan should be in operation here by June 1," Walsh said.

With Walsh here yesterday to help plan the ground work for the program was William Fay, certification officer for the federal program in Ohio.

Walsh said the county's three relief areas, including Mansfield, Shelby, and rural districts outside the cities, must set up $8,000 as a revolving fund to purchase the first order of stamps and set the program in motion.

Relief officials today had not determined how much the plan will cost, but it is expected to reduce direct relief expenses in the city and county. Th three county relief areas last month paid approximately $12,000 for relief supplies and administration.

The food stamps, which are a little larger than a three-cent

FARMERS GLAD

Weatherman Says Showers Due to Arrive Tonight.

The weatherman's forecast for showers tonight and Wednesday is just what Richland county farmers have been waiting for, County Agent George B. Ganyard said today.

"Lack of rain isn't a hindrance to the farmers now," he continued, "but later on it means a serious shortage of moisture.

Although the warm weather of the past week has aided the farmers in the field, the ground is pretty hard by now, according to the county agent.

Mansfield has had no rain since a week ago Friday, April 4.

Dramatic War Series Starts Tomorrow In N-J

To International News Service and to The News-Journal there has come one of the most dramatic stories of the war—the story of France, occupied and unoccupied—obtained through daring penetration of the forbidden zones by Kenneth T. Downs.

Downs, ace foreign correspondent of International News Service and winner of the George R. Holmes memorial award of 1939, tells the tragic story of present-day France in a series of articles beginning Wednesday in The News-Journal.

(Many News-Journal readers will recall that Downs spoke in Mansfield last fall, recounting his experiences as an American correspondent in France before the fall of that country.)

His new articles represent the fruit of the first successful penetration by an American reporter into German-dominated and occupied French territory.

They are a first hand, authoritative presentation of France as it is—and France as it may be if Germany wins or loses the great conflict now raging.

For the first time is related a secret conference between Adolf Hitler and Admiral Darlan of the French fleet, Hitler's plans for the part the fleet is to play, the role assigned to France by Hitler after the war.

For the first time is revealed the delicate, dangerous position in which former Vice Premier and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval now finds himself. So, too, is the tragic situation in which Chief of State Marshal Petain finds himself in the twilight of a long and honorable career.

What is the present social, economic, political, industrial, labor and military situation in occupied France? How stringent is the German rule in that ill-fated area, how closely supervised the demarcation line between occupied and unoccupied France?

What amazing, fantastic plan has Hitler evolved to gear the birth-rate of France - the destinies of generations yet unborn - to his dreams of conquest?

All these questions, and many more, are answered in the series beginning tomorrow.

Firemen Battle 5 Hours to Save Town

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Legends of Broadway.

(No. 5—The Bistro Bonifaces)

Broadway, circa 1930 (—) remember? Fabulous, foolish, fanciful era of folly. Mable Willebrandt, Murder for profit. Mushroom growth of night clubs in the Speakeasy Belt. There's gold in them thar battles. Joe sent me. Katharine Brush and Ursula Parrott and Vina Delmar. Georgie Raft and the Peabody. No wars—but plenty of copy, boys, plenty of copy!

The later conversion of press agents and dancers and fixture dealers into night club owners wasn't even a gleam in an author's eye in that era. Then, the bistro bonifaces had glamor. The men behind the velvet ropes were fuel for a reporter's pencil. As important as the star who sang perched on a piano or the magnificent gargoyle who made you laugh when he broke one.

With a marriage and a divorce between himself and the glamorous Wilda Bennett front-paged behind him, Peppy D'Albrew was well equipped to open a fashionable night club. He knew all who could afford ringside tables. A white mouse ran up and down the lapels of his bizarre dinner jacket in a happy manner—but that was only one of Peppy's many attractions.

He carried two or three cigaret cases encrusted with diamonds, and other precious gems—cases given to him by the Prince of Wales or King Alfonso or Pepe Le Moko, as the mood suited him.

He called his place the Chapeau Rouge—a delightful bit of Monmartre Paris. It was on West 49th St., one flight up and a few doors away from Seventh Avenue. Its walls were fruit markets and bakeshops and wine bistros and everything gay—theater posters in French on the lobby walls, a tiny bar just large enough for two couples.

Irene Bordoni was singing, "Bees do eeet, birds do eet...Let's fall in love!"

Someone, tipsy, shrieked, "Okay, baby!"

Peppy was furious. He leaped out onto the floor.

"You're pigs! You don't know how to act when an artist is on the floor. Everybody get out! No check for nobody. I close the place right now."

This was nothing unusual with the moody Peppy; it was part of his bad boy charm. Everyone left gaily—after all, no check!

It's a long road—studded with legends—that leads from George LaMaze's ultra-ultra Park Avenue Club then, to Maxie Rosenbloom's Hollywood joint now where the cover charge is a big dime to keep the riff-raff out.

LaMaze could do things with food—amazing and wonderful things. He knew it—and listed his prices accordingly. And though Maxie Rosenbloom was the light-heavyweight champion of the world, the clientele of the Park Avenue Club dropped lorgnettes into the vichy soisse when he entered one night, grinning happily from ear to cauliflower ear.

With him was a shabby young man wearing green trousers and a brown jacket.

LaMaze was filled with consternation. But after a moment of thought he grinned happily. His menu was white-chalked on a huge blackboard—that, and a huge celery and olive bowl in ice, was part of his "atmosphere." He hurriedly wrote something across the top of the blackboard and then rushed with it to the prize fighter's table.

The blackboard read, in big letters: "Bread and Butter—One Dollar."

The young man with Rosenbloom didn't even bat one of his big blue eyes.

"Let's have a steak, Maxie," he suggested.

The check for the dinner was staggering, but the young man paid it happily and tipped the waiters grandly.

And he could afford it. Why not? The Paramount Theater was paying him $2,500 weekly and he as earning more on the radio. He was a rising young star of the air lanes—a fellow who called himself Bing Crosby.

SENATE TALKS TAXATION OF ALL INCOMES

Elimination of Exemptions Is Suggested as Spending Bill Comes Up.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Talk of making every penny of the individual taxpayer's earned personal income subject to federal taxation cropped up in the senate today while leaders tentatively scheduled consideration of another big spending bill.

Senators Johnson (D., Colo.) and Herring (D., Iowa) declared that Americans are ready and willing to pay heavier income taxes to help finance defense. Johnson suggested that existing exemption of $2,000 for married persons and $800 for single individuals be eliminated entirely. Herring proposed lowering the exemptions to $1,500 and $500.

The appropriation legislation—a $1,152,372,632 supply measure for the treasury and postoffice departments—was ready for senate action but Democratic Leader Barkley said consideration might be delayed unless Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.), who has been ill, could be present to serve as floor manager.

In controversy was a section providing an $800,000 subsidy for establishment of a new trans-Atlantic air line by the American Export steamship lines. Supporters contend that it would provide needed service and strengthen this country's position in transoceanic aviation. Opponents say it would give American Export "a practical monopoly" on air and water transportation to Europe.

In the revenue field, Johnson, who recently returned from a trip to the west, declared he had "never seen people more willing to be taxed than they are at present, and we ought to accommodate them."

Besides appropriations and taxes, subjects of capital conversation included a resolution by Senator Tobey (R., N.H.) to forbid the convoying of American shipments abroad and an administration measure to permit the government to lease or purchase foreign ships lying idle in American waters.

The senate foreign relations committee will consider the Tobey restriction tomorrow. Barkley said he was hopeful the shipping legislation could be cleared by the committee and approved by the senate this week.

E. H. Bell, of the Bell Realty company, is still seeking the practical joker in his office. Yesterday noon, Bell called police to report the theft of a typewriter from his office. At 1:30 p. m., he called police again to notify that someone in the office had hidden the typewriter in a corner as a practical joke.

Dale Ward, 655 Park avenue west, is enjoying the sights in Mexico City if the cards he is sending back to friends in Mansfield are an indication. W. T. Houston, assistant postmaster, had a card today which says that Ward had just visited the bull fights at the capital city there and had seen the toreadors dispatch six bulls in an afternoons work.

R. L. Painter, 42 Greenwood avenue, has his own problem and even the Mansfield police department can't help him. Painter told police today that a robin is conducting a systematic destruction of his auto. The robin, according to Painter, has discovered that he can see his reflection in the surface of the car. Each time that Painter parks the auto in front of his home the robin flies to the running board and begins to peck at the painted finish. He says that the bird has already worn away a large patch of paint.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton is convinced that there is little justice in this world. Today when he was already scheduled to attend an industrial accident prevention meeting in Columbus, he was offered a ticket and transportation to the opening Indian-White Sox game. His gloom deepened when he was unable to find any person able to use the ticket.

PROPERTY LOSS HITS $50,000 IN BIG BLAZE

Departments From Four Cities Fight Flames Which Raze Nine Buildings.

(By Associated Press)

MARIETTA — A valiant five-hour fight by firemen from four nearby towns early today saved the village of Bartlett, western Washington county, from possible destruction by a raging blaze which razed nine buildings including the postoffice and the town's two stores.

Marietta Fire Chief George Holst estimated the loss at $50,000. Bartlett Postmaster Kirby Steele and other property owners said it might not exceed $25,000.

Mrs. Mary Shinn, Bartlett telephone operator, said that the fire started almost simultaneously in the postoffice and a grocery store next door and that it was believed a cigaret carelessly tossed in grass between the buildings might have caused the blaze.

A burned cable cut off telephone service to the town of about 200 people at 10:30 p. m., just 30 minutes after the flames were discovered and fire equipment summoned from Athens, Marietta, Beverly and Belpre. Bartlett has no fire department.

Telephone service was restored in one direction early today.

A scarcity of water, available only from cisterns, added to the fire-fighting difficulties.

However, firemen from the various towns, working in separate units, kept the inferno from spreading after their arrival.

Destroyed, in addition to the postoffice and grocery store, were a general store, Grange hall, feed mill and two residences. Two other residences were damaged.

"The firemen did a magnificent job," Mrs. Shinn said. "Otherwise there wouldn't be anything left here."

Mrs. Shinn said she knew of no casualties, and added that all livestock had been saved.

State highway patrolmen were dispatched to the scene from Athens to assist in the evacuation of household goods in threatened buildings.

TELLS FOREMEN OF JOB DUTIES

Ohio Bell Official Informs Them They Must Understand Workmen, His Problems.

Thomas E. Ducat of Akron, district installation foreman for the Ohio Bell Telephone company, told nearly 150 members of the Mansfield Shelby Foremen's club last night that good foremen must have an understanding of their workmen and the problems that handicap them on the job."

Speaking at a dinner meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, Ducat said, "weve got to think of how we say hello, pay attention to the little things that affect workers' feelings, and learn to put ourselves in their places sometimes."

He added that the three major requirements of a foreman are craft knowledge, good judgment, and skill in handling men.

"But the most acute need," he said, "is to learn to use what we already know."

E. C. Geiger, president of the club, announced the appointment of W. M. Weldon, jr., of the Ohio Brass company, W. O. Park of Westinghouse, and Zeno L. Hursh of the Shelby Salesbook company as a nominating committee to choose candidates for the club's annual election of officers at the May meeting.

Geiger said the nominating committee will accept suggestions from club members for one week before naming a slate of condidates.

Dinner music for the session last night was played by Carl Walters' orchestra. Rev. Glenn F. Lewis, rector of Grace Episcopal church, gave the invocation.

TELLS GIRL SCOUT LEADERS OF BENEFITS DERIVED FROM CAMPS

"Camping gives youth a firm broad basis of physical health and an emotional balance and serenity that may stand youth in good stead in the trying times that may lie ahead of all of us," Fay Welch of Columbia university, told 125 Girl Scout troop leaders and camp committee members here for an all-day camp conference in First Congregational church.

Welch shared the program with Miss Ann Roos, national camp advisor, both of New York City, and Miss Ruth Schroeder of Cleveland, executive secretary of Girl Scout activities in Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia.

Part of the Kenowva Scouting region that covers these three states, the delegation, headed by Kenowva Commissioner Mrs. James Bannon of Portsmouth, came from Cleveland, Akron, Toledo, Oberlin, Lorain, Youngstown and many other cities.

Mansfield Girl Scout Council acted as host and the official welcome was extended by Mrs. John W. Graham, local commissioner.

Mrs. J. W. Brannon presided until the Scout leaders divided into groups for discussions pertaining to day and troop camping in both small and large communities.

Mrs. Graham presided at the discussion on day camping in small communities and other presiding chairmen were Mrs. Willis Fulton, and Mrs. T. C. Robinson, Cleveland; Mrs. A. Hunsicker, Akron; Mrs. Milton M. Olander, Toledo, and Mrs. B. S. Park, Painesville.

ACTION ASSURED

Overtime Pay For Highway Workers Under Study.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—An amendment to the Bricker administration's $351,867,000 general appropriations bill to provide overtime pay for state highway department employes was virtually assured today by action of the senate finance committee.

The committee, holding its first meeting on the big appropriations measure yesterday, unofficially accepted the recommendation of Sen. Walter G. Nickels (R-New Philadelphia) to prepare the amendment, either in the bill in committee, or for introduction on the floor of the upper chamber when the legislation comes up for passage next week.

The move to bring the overtime compensation into the open was admittedly a purely political gesture to win for the solons the gratitude of the highway employes, since highway department funds provided in the appropriations bill already make allowance for the payments, which will be put into effect by departmental order whether or not the amendment is put into the measure.

DAR Holds First Business Session At 50th Congress

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The 50th continental congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution turns its attention today to matters of organizational policy and annual reports by its national officers.

The first business session of the week-long golden jubilee convention will be featured by announcements of the important resolutions committee. These announcements are expected to include a proposal pledging the DAR's support of the administration's program of all-out aid to Britain.

After disposing of the day's business, the organization will hold its annual pilgrimages to the tombs of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National cemetery and of George and Martha Washington at Mt. Vernon.

Opening-day ceremonies yesterday were devoted to the usual convocation formalities and speech-making highlighted by British Minister Nevile Butler's keynote address on "The Price of Liberty."

Butler, who noted in his speech that he had been invited to address an audience whose forefathers fought the British redcoats, was presented later with a check for $1,200 raised by the DAR's San Francisco chapter for purchase of an ambulance for Britain.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — You've doubtless heard of our newest Cinderella girl, the ex-waitress Juanita Stark.

Juanita is 19, looks a little like Clara Bow, and has a neatly turned figger. She wasn't exactly on relief when the talent agent came around, but she was close. She had been serving cupsacawfee in a little sandwich shop on the Republic lot, making $12 a week and maybe a dollar extra in rare tips, when she got the axe. She was drawing the last week of her unemployment insurance when heaven smiled and the contract came.

ROBBIN COONS

Juanita looks about the same, but the movies already have changed her. She says so herself.

"People," she expresses it, "act so different to me now. Everybody treats me as if I were somebody, and nobody makes smart cracks the way they used to. In the restaurant, I was getting so I'd crack right back — and my mother didn't like it. I don't know why it is when a girl is behind a counter some men think they've got to be funny. I guess they think a waitress doesn't have any feelings. Anyway, it's grand being in pictures—and the $50 a week is grand too!"

Juanita's father came to Hollywood from Cleveland to make a short for Pete Smith, but paralysis ended that. The girl's earnings had to support the family. Over at Republic, she was being urged to try for pictures, but nobody did anything about it. She played a bit once, but went back to the coffee cups. An agent, one of those who had a notion she could go places, sought her out and sold her to Warner Bros., where she's doing publicity pictures, occasional bits, and studying acting—all hopefully.

Edgar Kennedy would have us believe that, as a concession to the faster national pace, he is speeding up his "slow burn" from 10 to seven seconds.

Speaking of the pace—remember that musical dream-girl, "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi?" Well, the Sigs at University of Southern California have obliged Universal by naming Anne Gwynne their "TNT Girl," for "Trim, Neat, Terrific."

MOTION PICTURES GIVEN FOR PROGRAM

Monday Study Club Entertained at Susie Janis Home With Colored Movies of Ohio's Industries and Agriculture.

MEMBERS of the Monday Study club explored Ohio by means of sound motion pictures when they met Monday evening at the Susie Janis home, Park avenue west. The colored pictures entitled "Ohio's Good Earth" and "Oddities of Ohio" were presented through the courtesy of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio.

The program was based on one of the state's largest single industries, agriculture and views were taken on some of Ohio's prize farms and showed not only the planting and harvesting of crops but some of the livestock for which the state is famous. The second picture gave the behind-the-scene shots of unusual manufacturing processes, including glass-blowing, manufacture of plastic bowls, glass table cloths and a machine to make pretzels. Other views were devoted to the Ohio State Fair and consisted of a trip to all points of interest on the grounds. There were views of livestock, the exhibits of the senior and junior farm organizations, horse races, fireworks and all types of amusements.

High Style Fashions, Fancy Work

By MARIAN MARTIN

Your new little "cotton" must be very versatile these days! It must look equally well in and out-of-doors . . . it must be easy to launder . . . easy to wear . . . up-to-the-minute in style. This Marian Martin newcomer just fills the bill—it's Pattern 9656 and simple as can be to make. There's a buttoning all down the front that does wonders for your figure. The long panels at either side-front add to the general slim effect of the frock. Those curved side-bodice sections are masterpieces of figure flattery—notice how their softness is controlled by gathers above the waist and neat darts at the shoulders. Take your choice between short puffed and darted sleeves and brief, cool cap sleeves.

Pattern 9656 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 35 inch fabric and 1⅛ yards ric-rac.

Send Fifteen Cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your Size, Name, Address, and Stlye Number.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

RONALD does not know how to talk prison fashion, but his "Okay!" was so muted that I was sure no one else had heard it, and, feeling that I had reached as much of a solution of my problem as I could, unaided, I tried valiantly to enter into the gay chatter which Dicky purposely was leading, and which Sam and Helena Brixton, blessedly ignorant of what lurked beneath our talk were seconding with patent enjoyment.

Carolyn and Ronald, however, were distinctly distrait, and I saw vague suspicion in the girl's eyes, as well as a certain avid anxiety which, armed with the information Ronald had given me, I readily translated.

She must get the number of my compartment before seven-thirty, the hour the gangster had told her he would telephone again, and she was revolving ways and means of accosting me concerning my ticket without arousing my suspicions.

My brain was doing a bit of revolving on its own account, and as a result I was ready for Ronald when at last Helena "picked us up with her eyes," and led the way back to the living room with Dicky.

Instructions for Ronald.

Surreptitiously, before the dinner ended, I shipped one of the jeweled clips holding my collar from its place and dropped it on the floor beside my chair. Then when we were all out of the dining room, I put my hand up to my collar, and gave a little dismayed exclamation.

"My clip!" I said, not loudly, but distinctly. "I must have dropped it."

"I'll go back and find it," Ronald volunteered, playing up promptly.

"I'll go with you," I said, and tossed back a gay answer to Sam Brixton's prompt query: "Want any help?"

"No, indeed," I answered. "Ronald is a host in himself. I don't need anybody else," and on the word Ronald and I hurried back to the dining room.

I went at once to my chair, picked up the clip, and, while fastening it, turned to Ronald tensely.

"I thought you dropped that on purpose," he said.

"Never mind that, now," I said crisply. "Listen carefully! My husband must not know what you overheard about that man wanting to know my compartment number."

"But you will be in danger—the boy expostulated, troubled.

"Ronald!" I said with dissembled severity. "I am accustamed to dealing with worse situations than this. I will manage it. But you have something to do. Carolyn will try to get the compartment number from me. She will not get it. But you must not leave her side, must give her no opportunity of talking to Uncle Dicky until after he has come back from the train. After that, you can tell him everything, especially the fact that Carolyn has told the gangster the route you're taking back to Weirhampton."

"He'll kill me for not telling him about you, and I can't blame him," the boy said sadly.

"Tell him I forbade you to mention it to him." I suggested. "I'll take all the responsibility and the blame. But you must see to it that she does not get a chance to speak a word to Uncle Dicky alone until I am gone. You'll also have to listen in on her telephone conversation wth that gangster at seven-thirty when he is to call her again."

Carolyn's First Move.

"But I can't get back to the living room before she does," he said.

"I'll stick to my husband closer than a leech until you do get back," I promised with a smile. "One more thing, keep your eyes open tomorrow!"

"I will," he said, fervently. "Will you keep yours open tonight."

"You may rely on that," I told him, "and also on this. I really shall be in no danger. I have dealt with far worse situations than this."

"I hope you're right," Ronald said, and I fervently echoed his wish as we went back to the living room. Carolyn lost no time in coming up to me.

"How horrid that you have to take this tiresome journey tonight!" she said. "I hope Uncle Dicky was able to get you a good compartment."

"The Authority on Authorities"

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE

Some combinations of cards work out differently in actual play from the way you might think offhand if you fail to study them carefully. Apparently you can play them either of two ways, and get the identical result. Further probing of their possibilities may show that one method is definitely the correct one and the other just as definitely incorrect.

As soon as West led his heart K and the dummy was faced, the declarer saw that he was certain to lose a trick in spades, plus almost surely a trump trick to probable bunched trumps with Mr. Doubler in the West. He therefore could not afford to lose a club trick. To make his contract, he would have to find East holding the club K. So he based his rapid calculations on that contingency. He ruffed the heart K, then confirmed the trump bad news by laying down the A, following it with the K. He then took his spade locer with a lead to the J and Q and ruffed the returned heart. He cashed the diamond Q, led to the spade A and was now ready to play the clubs.

As he explained later, he had all cards ranging from the 9 to the Q, so it made no difference whether he led the J or the 9 from the dummy, as the 10 could be played under the J to leave the lead in dummy. That is what he did—led the J and played the 10. East ducked and then the 9 was led, which East covered with the K. South overtook with the A, then suddenly realized that after cashing the Q, he had to lead the 3 to the 8, setting him.

If he had led the 9 first, East could not have taken a club trick, regardless of whether he covered it or not. Just figure it out for yourself. It most certainly did make a difference, which card was led from dummy on the first club trick.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South play for 4-Spades on this deal, doubled by West, who leads the diamond 4?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, April 16.

A day to be up and doing with verve, zest and initiative in whatever direction the yearnings and aspirations are most insistently centered. This is likely to be on the joys of a sentimental or emotional complexion rather than the solid or workaday, although in practical lines there may be signs of promotion preferment, honors or other tokens from the hands of superiors or those in high places. Cultural and artistic ambitions may be gratified. In all intimate affairs be alert to peculiar angles of intrigue or duplicity.

Those whose birthday it is should be on the eve of a year of opportunity for succeeding in a progressive and productive chain of events, involving the private as well as public life. There are indications of favors, honors and promotion from those in prestige and power and also the artistic, intellectual and emotional urges may find felicitous expression.

Tyger Gridders Outclass Toledo Waite In Practice

Sport Podge by REX HESS

The baseball season opens today in Cleveland, and it opens also at City News, Hunt's News and all the other spots in town where tickers tick, and baseball boards proclaim the progress of the pastime throughout the big leagues.

But what is more important to this item, the season also opens for Charley Nichols who rates as Mansfield's No. 1 Cleveland Indian booster.

"Charley starts on his summer vacation today," say his colleagues at the Rickets & Nichols print shop. "We'll get no more work out of him until next October."

Charley denies the assertion of his co-workers that from now on he'll spend the mornings reading the sport page, the afternoons at the baseball ticker, and the nights dreaming baseball.

"I start early and work fast," is the way he explains the leisure he has for the diamond sport.

For those diamond figures
High up on the wall,
The newsstands want Charley
To hurl the first ball.

Nichols had a system last summer, and by that system you could tell, without looking at the boards, just how the Indians were making out.

If Charley was at the City you knew the Tribe was ahead and he was ribbing the anti-Cleveland contingent there. But when you saw him at Hunt's you knew the Indians were behind and he'd have little to say.

"I see," says President Pauline Shively of the women's bowling league, "where you've been taking a bit of a ribbing for giving the women some publicity in sports.

'For some reason or other the men don't seem to think we're very important, even at the bowling alleys.

"But we HAVE MORE FUN!"

The golfing beginner was puzzled when his feminine companion strode ahead of him to the tee and prepared to swing.

"It's my honor," she explained.

"Gosh," gurgled the timid tyro. "I didn't do nothin'."

SOCIETY NOTE: Romance bloomed this past week-end in the ranks of the Mansfield Provident softballers, state girl champions.

The club's star hurler, Frances Clark of Ashland, and team coach Cloyd Knapp of New London were married last Friday, so I'm informed by first sacker Ev Jocha.

And have you seen those bright red uniforms of the softballers on display in the Provident window? What a trousseau for a dashing young bride!

FAIR CATCHES OF FISH GREET ANGLERS

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Dr. S. Ballentine Cook, and [illegible] Fish Commission reported the first good spots for April fishing.

Pickerel, perch, crappies and rock bass are biting, Cook said, and muskies, bass and catfish were reported—the pike being a comparative stranger in the Sandusky river district.

At Indian Lake one angler was credited with 20 crappies and on two successive days another fisherman took giant bass weighing five pounds 12 ounces and five pounds 15 ounces.

Bluegills are plentiful at Pike Lake, near Youngstown, the commission reported, with Lake St. Marys and lower reaches of the Chagrin river near Willoughby also yielding good catches.

QUITS COACHING

TROY —(AP)— William A. Howald, coach and director of athletics at Troy high school for the past 14 years, will take over his new position as principal of Montpelier, O., high school in September.

36 Entries Received For Relays

Mehock Sticks to Seventy As Number Expected.

WITH 36 schools officially entered and more being added daily, Harry Mehock, director of the Mansfield Relays today predicted the 15th annual event next Saturday would find the entry list close to the 70 mark in contrast to the 50 of last year.

"We have definite promises of contestants from a number of schools that have not yet filed their entries," Mehock said, "and some of them have listed the Mansfield Relays on their announced track schedule for this spring.

* * *

Four states are now represented in the entry list. Kentucky is the latest with an entry from Newport.

From Pennsylvania entries have been received from Derry township, Meadville, Mt. Lebanon, Wilkinsburg, Erie, Clairton, and Geneva.

Michigan has East Detroit and River Rouge signed up and others are expected, while several entries are also promised from West Virginia.

Ohio schools entered include the Relays favorite and defending champion, Cleveland East Tech, and the strong contender Cleveland East. Collinwood West Tech, Cleveland Heights, Lakewood Cathedral Latin, and Cleveland Central also are in the list.

* * *

Other Ohio entries are Sandusky, Mansfield, Coventry, Plymouth, Mechanicsburg, Madison, Springfield, Akron South, Mingo Junction, Columbiana, Mentor, Rome, Pettitsville, Toledo DeVilbiss, Youngstown Rayen, Louisville, Struthers, Columbus East, and Toledo Scott.

No Set-Ups In A. A. Says Red

Teams Look Stronger Than Last Year.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— With the prediction from league prexy, George "Red" Trautman, that "there will be no set-ups this season," eight American Association baseball teams tapered off today for the season's inaugurals Thursday afternoon on the four eastern clubs' home lots.

"The teams look a great deal stronger than when they moved north last season," Trautman declared upon his return from a tour of the training camps.

* * *

"Some clubs need assistance," the loop prexy said, "but most of them are certain of their future aid and should get it before the season is far along."

As a parting shot Trautman predicted, "keep your fingers crossed for good weather and we'll break all attendance records in Thursday's openers."

Here's how the team will pair off for the openers:

Kansas City at Louisville, Milwaukee at Indianapolis, St. Paul at Columbus and Minneapolis at Toledo.

The spotlight will shine most brightly on the Louisville-Kansas City game at Parkway field in Louisville and the Milwaukee invasion of Indianapolis.

* * *

The Colonels, winner of the 1940 playoff, have another strong club as have the Blus, the 1939 and 1940 pennant winner. The tilt between Indianapolis and the Brewers holds particular interest in view of a "brother duel." The Indians are managed by Wade Killifer while the other member of the brother team, Bill, pilots the Brewers.

DARIO MAKES DEBUT ON TWO CAREERS

CHICAGO —(INS)— Dario Lodigiani of San Francisco Lodigianis started out on two careers today—as a bridegroom and as the Chicago White Sox new third baseman.

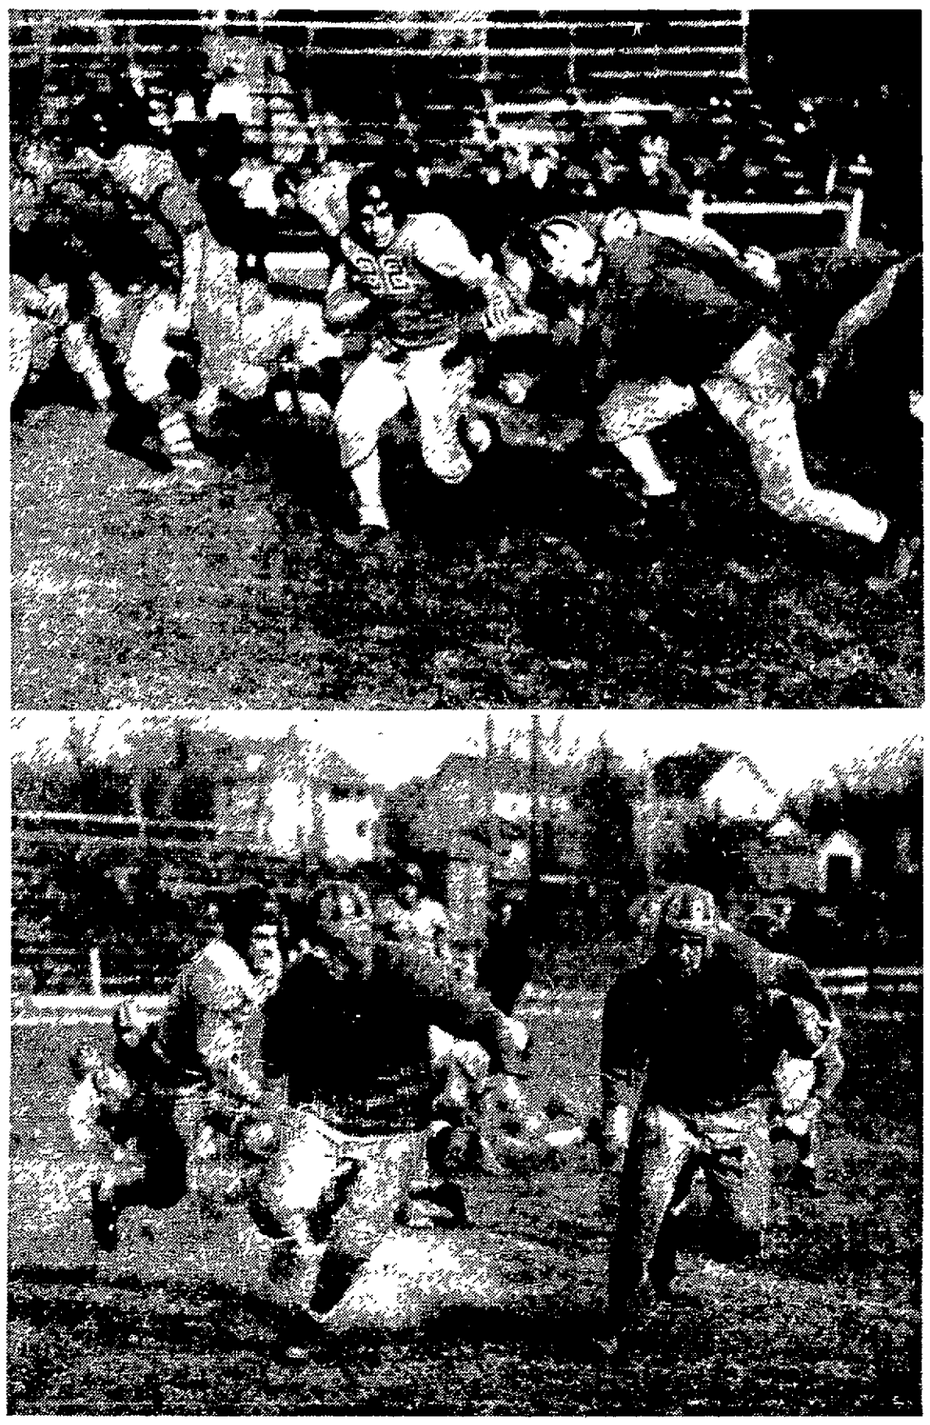
Lodigiani, who was the sensation of the Pole Hoses spring exhibition games with his batting and fielding, signed off to Cream Point, Ind., yesterday and was married to his childhood sweetheart, Constance Mathews of Phoenix, Ariz. The two met while attending high school in San Francisco.

CEDARVILLE COACH TAKES NEW POST

XENIA —(AP)— Howard E. Thompson, Cedarville college coach said today that he had accepted a position with the New Bethlehem Central high school at Indiana, N. Y., as athletic director and basketball and track coach.

Director of the Cedarville physical education department for the last two years, Thompson will start at his new post next year. A successor to Thompson has not been named.

Tygers Show Grid Tricks To Waite



Two bits of action snapped in yesterday's practice session between Mansfield High school gridders and Toledo Waite at Stadium field before more than 600 fans are shown above. In the top picture Adam Brandt of the Tygers is plunging through a big hole in the Waite line. The trick is duplicated by Bauman of Waite in the lower picture. It looks like he might be away, but he wasn't. An alert Mansfield secondary saw to that.

BOWLING SCORES

Sonny Meder paced the Club league last night with 212-211-204—628, followed by Bill Black, sr., with 191-221-195—607, and Jim Orr 211-186-203—600.

Liederkranz took team honors with 920-893-898—2701.

Bill Hoff chalked up high score for the C league with 189-210-157—517, and Mayer Drugs had high total with 915-718-858—2516.

In the Tappan league Jake Streatmater showed the way with 206-184-167—557, and Cast Mounting had 764-837-792—2398.

Barlund Boss Fights Ruling

Suspension of Manager And Fighter Hit.

CHICAGO—(UP)—Paul Damski, manager of heavyweight Gunnar Barlund, said today he would fight an Illinois Athletic commission decision suspending him and Barlund for an unsatisfactory match with Billy Conn April 4.

The commission revoked Barlund's license for one year and permanently withheld his purse of $2,955.50 after hearing evidence yesterday that Barlund, at Damski's advice, quit without satisfactory reason at the start of the eighth round. Damski was suspended for one year.

* * *

Damski argued he told Barlund not to answer the bell because of a cut over his right eye. A commission physician said the cut was not bad enough to stop the fight.

Yanks Get Jump On Rivals

Senators Haven't Chance Against Russo Hooks.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

SIXTEEN major league baseball machines were lined up today for action before more than 200,000 fans—but, even on opening day, it was the old familiar story of chasing the New York Yankees.

* * *

The fearsome Bombers from the Bronx got a jump on the other teams yesterday by shellacking the Washington Senators, 3-0, before President Roosevelt and 32,000 other Capital fans.

The way the Yanks took the lead in the American League before their rivals could get started was something like the way they used to scare their foes into submission by blasting countless "home runs" into the stands and over the fences in batting practice before their games began.

They didn't even give Washington a chance during the contest. The ceremonies of Vice President Wallace raising the American flag and President Roosevelt throwing out the first ball were hardly over before the Yanks had rolled out in front.

Red Rolfe, second man up, singled to right. He was forced by Tommy Henrich, but the latter went all the way to second on a wild throw and scored quickly on a towering triple by Joe DiMaggio.

The Senators, as well as the spectators, were practically stunned by the ease of the thrust, and Marius Russo, slender sophomore southpaw, never let them recover. He held the Nationals to three scattered singles and started two of the Yankees' three double plays. In addition, the Yanks punched out another run in the sixth on two singles and a long fly.

The Senators were up against marvelous pitching, but they didn't show any signs they would be a hitting team anytime this year. And the very fact that the opposition was so willed may keep keep other American League clubs from getting discouraged immediately.

However, the Yanks were due to open their home season today against the Philadelphia Athletics and, after two other games against the same foes at New York, return to Washington for a series with the Senators.

Thus, New York has an opportunity to build up momentum against the two teams that figure to be the league's weakest this season.

The Detroit Tigers, on the other hand, had to face the St. Louis Browns, "spoilers" of better teams all last season, and the Cleveland Indians ran into the always-dangerous Chicago White Sox in their openers today. Friday, the Indians and

Mansfield Should Have Good Season Declares Coach of Rival School

By REX HESS, News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD football fans got their first glimpse of next fall's high school grid warriors in action yesterday afternoon in a practice session with Toledo Waite, and what they saw sent them away very happy.

Coach Paul Snyder's Tygers tallied three touchdowns to one for Jack Mollenkopf's Waite eleven, but the score was incidental. It might easily have been more if the clubs had engaged in a regulation game.

But for an epidemic of fumbles in the early going, Waite would never have threatened the Tyger goal, and Mansfield would have jumped away to an early lead that could have turned into a rout.

But it was strictly a practice session, with nearly as many coaches, officials and sundry other civilians on the field as football players, while the crowd of 600 to 700 fans was generally completely in the dark as to what was going on.

For one quarter it resembled a football game. After that it was just scrimmage, with quarters forgotten, and little account kept of yardage. In the latter part of the session one team would take the ball for 20 plays or so, and then the other team would take its turn.

In this kind of football Waite got exactly nowhere, and the Tygers marched up and down the field, so the fans were just as happy as though it had been a football game.

Two costly fumbles robbed Mansfield of scoring chances in the first period, one coming on the Waite 4-yard line and another on the 14. And to start the next period a Mansfield fumble gave Waite the oval on the Tyger 4-yard stripe, and Waite scored on a plunge by Fullback Bauman.

Mansfield took the next kickoff and marched to a touchdown as reverse plays began clicking on both sides of the line of march. Joe Romano sparked the drive with long gains on end-around plays, the last one putting the ball on the Waite 2-yard line where Adam Brandt plunged over to tie the score.

Second team of the two schools were then given a long workout and when the regulars returned to action Mansfield again started on the march to score on a 10-yard dash off tackle by Krupp.

Another long drive wound up with Bill Doolittle plunging for a touchdown from the 1-yard line.

The Tygers showed a marked superiority in physical condition and outcharged their opponents all afternoon. Their blocking at times was just about perfect, and at other times ragged, but always it was hard, and the boys really seemed to enjoy it.

"You should have a good season next fall with that team," said Coach Mollenkopf. "That left end (Joe Romano) is a helluva football player."

* * *

"I was very well pleased with some of the things I saw, and other things indicated more work is needed," replied Snyder. "As for our season, we play an awfully tough schedule."

Derringer Given Task of Turning Back Cards.

By JOHNNY FRYE

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Despite war, thunderstorm, and election, to steal the phrase of the late Senator Simeon D. Fess in avowing he'd get his sleep, there's a ball game here today, between the world champion Cincinnati Reds and the vitaminized St. Louis Cardinals.

* * *

The war is across a couple of oceans, thunderstorms (scattered) are in the weather bureau's tentative thought for the day, and the election will take 154 ballots—one for each game—to settle.

Just the same, as soon as Gov. John W. Bricker lobs out the ball at 2:30 this afternoon, the Reds start out for one of the National league's rarest prizes—a third straight pennant. Paul Derringer, senior member of one of the greatest two-man pitching acts in all time, and Lon Warnke, are the day's hurlers.

Each has the same record of three victories and two defeats against the other's team for 1940. Each is, as befits an opening day pitcher, a darned good artist with the ball, and it wouldn't surprise too many of the 35,000 cash customers if the game ended in a tie. That has happened more than once between these two teams and Derringer worked 10 innings in one of them.

Another factor which makes today's affair and the whole three-game series of interest is the possibility that the Cards, who were the hottest thing in baseball too late last season, may still be that way.

If they had played the first half of 1940 the way they did the second half, the Reds would not have won the pennant by 12 games. In fact, they would have been lucky to squeak through any farther ahead than in 1939, when they just barely outlasted the Cards.

* * *

Anyway, there is a fine, fat chance that the 1941 pennant winner is to be seen in action at Crosley Field today, tomorrow, and next day. Larry MacPhail may perish the thought, but the burden of proof is on his Brooklyn Dodgers.

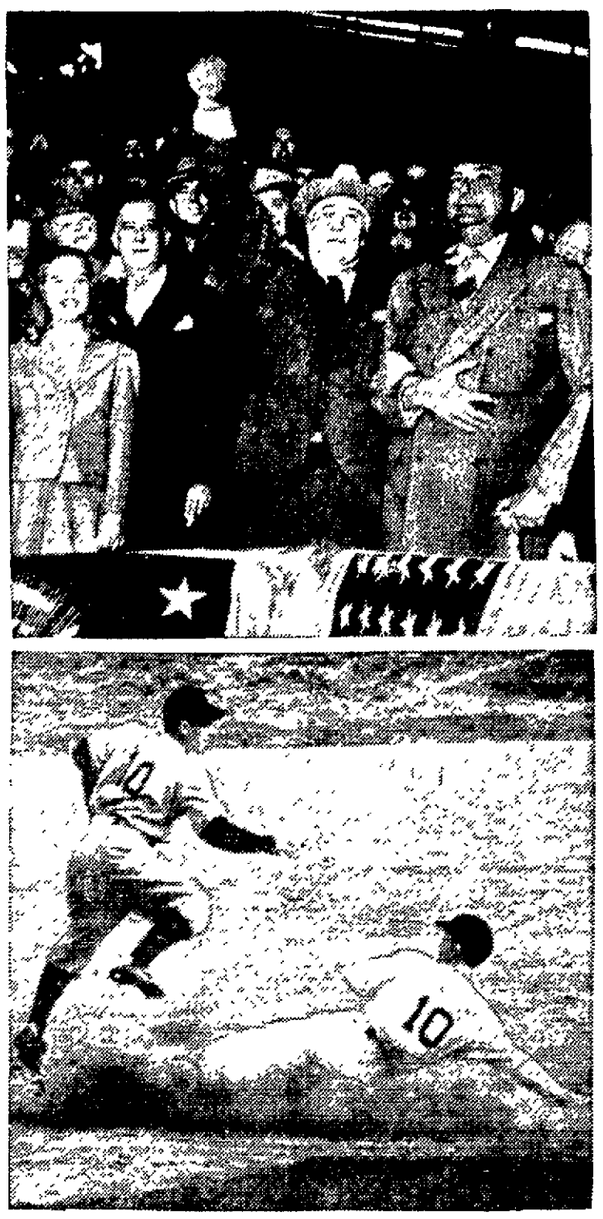
FDR Opens Ball Season



President Roosevelt is shown above as he threw out the first ball to start the first game of the major league season at Washington, D. C., in which the New York Yankees met the Washington Senators. Just left of the president is his secretary, Steve Early. At the right is Brigadier General Edwin Watson, his military aide. The Yanks won 3 to 0.

Sees Sympathy For Conn Sign Of New Champion

By HARRY FERGUSON.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— So many people feel so sorry for Billy Conn these days that your correspondent gradually is being overwhelmed by a hunch that some warm, starry evening this summer we are going to see one of the biggest upsets in the history of boxing.

Conn, as you doubtless know, is the slender Pittsburgh youngster, who is going to be thrown in there against the Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship sometime between now and the time the first football punt soars into the autumn air.

Ever since the match was made there have been cries of "murder." Resolutions have been passed condemning the cruelty of letting a nice boy like Conn, who weighs 175 pounds dripping wet, go up against the hard-punching Louis who will come in around 202.

To hear them talk you would think Conn will be in there handcuffed waiting for Louis to break his jaw with the first left hook that's thrown.

Your correspondent is not prepared to hock the furniture and put everything on Conn to win, but he would like to give the kid a chance to go a few rounds instead of conceding the victory to Louis before they get into the ring. And I will risk the prediction that if Conn gets past the first five rounds without running into one of Louis' pulverizers he will have a swell chance to win the decision and the championship.

There's no use kidding ourselves about Conn's punch. He couldn't fight his way out of a cellophane bag and his bouts never end with one explosive knock-out punch. But he has a fast jab, a left hook that cuts and hurts when it lands and the best footwork in the business.

The kid's greatest liability is that he is a slow starter. Time after time, mediocre boxers have cuffed him around for the first two or three rounds. After that Billy starts rolling like a runaway express downgrade and by the eighth or ninth he is a mean customer.

* * *

Billy has been an interested spectator at most of Louis' bum-of-the-month fights this year and he claims that he can outspeed and outpoint the champion. If he sticks to that strategy he may do all right. But he has a quick Irish temper and if somebody tags him on the jaw he rushes in and starts swapping punches. If that happens against Louis, the kid will be known hereafter as "suicide" Conn.

Warning to Mothers:

WORMS CAN CAUSE TROUBLE

Learn the truth! Anybody, anywhere, can have roundworms. And they can cause great distress inside your child without your even knowing what is wrong.

Many pale, nervous, underweight children have bowel worms. Other innocent-looking warning signs are uneasy stomach, fidgeting, itchy seat, nose-picking.

Don't take chances with roundworms! Get Jayne's Vermifuge today! It is America's best known proprietary worm medicine — used by millions, for over a century. Jayne's expels stubborn roundworms, yet acts gently. If there are no worms, it works just as a mild laxative. Insist on Jayne's Vermifuge.

the Tigers will tangle at Detroit.

Fortunately, championships are not decided in the first month, and before the end of next September all of the clubs will have faced the strong and the weak alike.

This same reasoning may be some solace to the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds, western division king pins of the National League, who clashed today at Cincinnati, while the Brooklyn Dodgers, their arch rivals in the east, took on the luster-lacking New York Giants.

From a fans' viewpoint, however, the show at Cincinnati shaped up as the day's most interesting and important. Crosley Field was sold out of reserved seats for the opener long ago as a result of the Cincinnati custom of giving the tickets as Christmas gifts.

The crown would be 35,000, whether the attraction was good or not, but the World champions had to come up against one of the two National League teams considerd capable of bumping them out of their third straight pennant. The three-game series opening today may give everybody a better slant on the Redbird threat.

Until proved otherwise, the Reds have to be regarded the likely winner next fall because they have unequalled pitching and defense and have bolstered their batting strength through the trade with Chicago for Outfielder Jim Gleeson.

* * *

Other clubs have improved, too, but it will take a lot of reconstrucion to overcome the 12 game lead with which Cincinnati finished last year.

The other openers included Pittsburgh at Chicago and Boston at Philadelphia in the National, and Washington at Boston in the American.

Issues Waver as War Bulletins Cause Some Bearishness on Market Today.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Stocks generally were unable to follow through today on yesterday's mild rally.

Among wavering issues at intervals were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Chrysler, Pennsylvania, U. S. Rubber, Glenn Martin, American Smelting, Du Pont, General Electric and Texas Corp.

Bonds and commodities were uneven.

Scant speculative inspiration as found in the foreign news, brokers said. War bulletins, as a matter of fact, brought out a little bearishness here and there.

The broad wage increase in the steel industry, adding some $90,000,000 annually to company payrolls, was the principal subject of discussion in boardrooms before the opening.

Notice was taken of the F. W. Dodge Corp. survey indicating building and construction awards in 37 eastern states in the first quarter were the highest for any similar three months since 1929.

FOUR SLAIN IN MINE GUN FIGHT

7 Wounded as Pickets Battle Non-Union Men Along Tennessee Road.

urer of the concern; Bob Robinson, 35, Caliwell, Tenn., Clayborne county deputy sheriff and former sergeant in the Tennessee state police, and Sam Evans, 40, Middlesboro, a member of the United Mine Workers (CIO).

The wounded, all members of the UMW, were listed as R. W. Lawson, Bell county, Kentucky; Alford Smith, Rella, Ky.; Walter Polly, Arjay, Ky.; Earl Alley, Balkan, Ky.; John Holland, Cary, Ky.; Clayton Webb, Capito, Ky., and Millard Forester, Cary.

The gun battle was fought on a narrow road leading to the company's coal camp across the state line in Tennessee.

The Fork Ridge mine has been operating regularly since the start of the current bituminous shut down. Approximately 250 UMW pickets marched to a point near the mine and massed to prevent non-union miners from proceeding to the workings.

Two different accounts were given as explanations for the outbreak of gun fire. One report had it that Silvers who was driving his automobile to the mine stopped his car, got out and asked the leaders of the union men what they intended to do. According to this report, a picket shot and killed him at close range with a blast from a sawed off shot gun. General fighting then ensued.

The other report was that Rhodes who was driving to the mine with Robinson had stopped his car and was talking with representatives of the union when a non-union employe standing behind the car fired into the massed union pickets.

Patrolman Ed Tinsley of the Middlesboro police headquarters said that the shooting continued for only a few moments but that during the fight, shotguns, rifles and submachine guns were used.

The participants scattered before police and deputy sheriffs reached the scene.

Police headquarters reported that many of the pickets were from Harlan county, Kentucky, where there have been two gun fights between non-union and UMW miners since the soft coal shutdown.

COMPETE TONIGHT.

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus High school track men will compete in the first track meet of the season tonight under lights on Shelby field. The program will begin at 7:30 p. m. Schools entered in the events include Marion, Bucyrus and Shelby.

PEDESTRIAN INJURED.

BUCYRUS—Gurney Shupp, 582 South Poplar street, was treated at City Hospital Saturday for a head lacerations received when he was struck by an automobile driven by Paul E. Twigg, Marion, on Washington Square. Police reported that Shupp crossed the street on a green light.

GERMANS CRACK ALLIED DEFENSE LINE IN GREECE

Capture Key Town of Phlorina; British Claim Right Flank Holds Up.

24 hours after it began and sought in vain to hinder it by pushing forward motorcyclists."

Premier Mussolini's high command asserted that the Italian 9th army, after taking Corrizza, was driving on toward Greece through a gap torn in the western half of the Allied defense line

Authorized quarters in Berlin declared the German high command, through Luftwaffe observations, had discovered undisputable proof that the British were preparing a hasty retreat from Greece.

"England's behavior is the most shameful crime ever perpetrated on an ally," the Nazis said

The London radio, however declared that "strong British reinforcements are now moving up to front lines in Greece"

The vanguard of the Axis expeditionary force in North Africa was reported pressing deeper into Egypt after capturing Salum, just inside the border from Libya

The fate of the trapped British garrison at Tobruk remained uncertain, but London officials said that between 200 and 300 German prisoners had been seized in a British counter-attack and that 12 Axis planes had been shot down over the Libyan fortress

On the Albanian-Yugoslav front Italian press dispatches said the Serb army was being forced back into the mountains at most places. They told of a fierce battle in which masses of shouting Serbs hurled themselves against Italian lines near Scutari, on northern Albania's frontier with Yugoslavia. These reports said the attack had failed.

The German press declared 110,000 tons of British supply ships and transports had been sunk or damaged by German dive bombers in attacks on Piraeus, the port of Athens. It was implied that the ships had been brought up to take British forces out of Greece.

Berlin newspapers reflected a view that the fighting in Yugoslavia is finished except for mopping up, and directed interest to the North African theater of war where Axis forces have driven onto Egyptian soil and are in action near Salum.

British bombers were credited with a new night attack on Brest, raided seven times in the past two weeks in an attempt to put out of action the Nazi battleships Gneisenau and Schornhorst, anchored there.

Raids on England overnight were described in London as relatively light

Claim Capture of 200 Nazis At Tobruk

(By United Press)

LONDON — (U P) — Military authorities asserted today that British forces in Tobruk, on the Libyan coast, had captured between 200 and 300 Germans in a counter-attack.

Twelve German-Italian airplanes were shot down in a raid on Tobruk, the authorities said. The date of the raid was not given Suspicion was voiced today that Germany had had the tacit aid of France in moving to Africa the forces which had driven beyond Libya into Egypt.

The Daily Mail suggested that the German armored divisions sailed from Sicily to the French Tunisian coast and then kept in French territorial waters to Tripoli, Libya, with the connivance of the Vichy government.

The Daily Mail expressed belief that Hitler was plotting to squeeze Britain from the middle east and the Mediterranean by means of a drive at the Mosul oil wells whose produce is carried across Syria and Palestine by pile lines.

The Daily Mail allegations were indicative of the increasing public alarm over Great Britain's position in the middle east and the Mediterranean generally.

Some newspapers began to demand that the government explain how Germany managed to ship across the Sicilian Straits a force big enough to push the British army back 300 miles in 10 days and to threaten Alexandria and the Suez Canal.

Military commentators emphasized the increasing danger of German airplane bombings of Alexandria and the Suez Canal.

Britain Rushes To Bolster Egypt Defense

LONDON—Thousands of British imperial troops released from the East African front were reported hastening to the defense of Egypt today in a race with mechanized Axis forces pushing from the west in a drive aimed at the Suez canal

With the British garrison at Tobruk, Libya, hemmed in by German and Italian units which already have reached the Egyptian outpost of Salum, there no longer was any attempt here to minimize the seriousness of the situation

Although public confidence in Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British middle east commander, appeared strong, most observers agreed that he is facing a more difficult task than the one he accomplished only a few months ago when he drove the Italians out of Egypt.

This time, they pointed out, the British fleet—which played a big part in blasting Italians from positions along the North African coast—will be facing the threat of hampering attacks from Nazi dive bombers

The German-Italian threat to Alexandria and the Suez raised the possibility that Egypt, thus far a non-belligerent, might find herself at war any day.

The Egyptian chamber of deputies met secretly last night to discuss defense measures after Premier Hussein Sirry Pasha had conferred with Wavell and heads of the chief Egyptian political parties

Almost simultaneously, the Egyptian finance ministry announced that the government regarded Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary as Axis-occupied countries and would appoint custodians to take over property owned by their nationals, paralleling British action Similar measures previously had been taken with regard to German and Italian properties

The latest developments in the middle east held great import for the Moslem world, of the 250,000,000 followers of Islam spread over Europe, Africa and Asia, approximately 100,000,000 live under the British flag, and their destinies are bound up in Britain's struggle with the Axis.

Germany has been courting Moslem favor, especially in French-mandated Syria and oil-rich Iran.

Nazi Bombers Driven Back Across Channel

A SOUTH COAST TOWN England—(AP)—Formations of German Messerschmitt 109s were driven back toward France several times by RAF fighter parols today as air activity over the English Channel reached a bigger scale than had been seen in this area for some time.

Observers said they believed that RAF fighters also made an offensive sweep over northern France. A formation of fighters was seen leaving the English coast and later returning from the direction of Boulogne.

postage stamp, will be distributed to relief clients, WPA workers, persons receiving blind relief, and possibly to old age pensioners.

Holders of the stamps can make food purchases at any store in the county, using the stamps as money. Yellow stamps will be used for direct relief orders and blue stamps for surplus commodities which also will be available at stores.

The stamps, issued in booklets of denominations ranging from $1 to $12, will be redeemable by merchants at banks or at the federal commodities auditing department in Cleveland. There will be no cash transaction between the purchaser and the groceryman. Stores are not permitted to give change to holders of the stamps.

Walsh said there is a stiff penalty for merchants who violate the federal law by selling relief clients other articles than necessary food supplies

The stamps will be allocated at the county relief office on the same basis as direct relief orders and surplus commodities. If placed in operation here, the stamp plan will replace the present distribution of surplus commodities from relief headquarters, since all food to relief clients will be handled by stores.

The program was set up by the U. S. department of agriculture as a means of dispensing surplus food supplies produced on farms in the United States.

Walsh explained that the plan will benefit relief families by giving them a better balanced diet He pointed out that they are forced to take big supplies of foodstuffs they can't use under the surplus commodities plan of distribution, often receiving large quantities of one or two kinds of foods. Under the stamp plan they can purchase the foods they need as they use them, he said.

STEEL WORKERS GET PAY BOOST

Smaller Mills Follow Lead of Large Producers; Coal Talks Continue.

consumers was whether the wage increases would cause a rise in the price of steel. Many steel men guessed yes, especially if soft coal wages and prices go up as well.

Secretary Perkins reported "a very pleasant meeting" with the soft coal negotiators at New York last night, but no immediate developments were apparent as a result of her efforts. Representatives of the management and of the United mine workers (CIO) were to meet again late today.

The union is asking a flat $7 a day wage in all mines, north and south. The present scale is $5 60 in the south and $6 in the north, and southern operators have declared they would not consent to elimination of the sectional differential. The northern mine owners have agreed to the $7 level, the southern bloc walked out of the conference and offered an 11 per cent increase over the present $5.60. The union was reported insisting on the $7 scale in both areas.

While the Ford Motor company prepared to return to full operations at its River Rouge plant following settlement of a CIO-United Automobile Workers strike, General Motors Corporation resumed negotiations with the same union over a new contract The union has threatened to call a strike of non-defense employes of GMC unless wage increases and other concessions are granted.

The national defense mediation board at Washington announced settlement of a 24-weeks strike at the Snoqualmie Falls (Wash) Lumber company. Settlement details were withheld pending submission of the agreement to the affected AFL local union The dispute had centered over wages hours and a union membership clause

The mediation board also announced last night that 1,800 striking CIO employes might return to work at the Phelps-Dodge Copper Products company, Elizabeth, N J, pending negotiations on wages, hours and a union shop A proposal to that effect was to be submitted to the union for approval

At Buffalo, N Y, the Great Lakes Towing company of Cleveland signed new contracts with two AFL unions, providing wage increases for 1 200 tugmen.

At Cleveland, five tankers and a barge in the Cleveland Tanker, Inc., fleet were tied up by a dispute between the company and two CIO units—the National Maritime union and the Great Lakes Officers' association.

A company spokesman said wage negotiations with both were under way but that unionists refused to work until agreements were signed. A union spokesman declared the crews had been "locked out." About 175 seamen are affected.

Forty employes of the Hamilton, (O.) Caster & Manufacturing Co. returned to work today, the dispute which kept them out yesterday described by a federal labor conciliator as a "misinterpretation of a contract."

Andrew Meyer of Cincinnati, the mediator, said the dispute was "settled agreeably to both sides" but in time for the second shift of 40 men to report for work late Monday

Joseph Carpenter, head of the textile workers union local (CIO) said work stopped in protests of one employe's failure to pay union dues because he believed an open shop agreement signed two months ago made payment optional.

Meyer did not disclose how the settlement dealt with the dues problem, but said that company and union officials agreed to "talk to" the employe involved naval affairs committee specifically to testify about a bill by Rep. Vinson (D) Ga., chairman, which would impose mandatory 30-day "cooling off" periods before strikes could be called, legalize the new defense mediation board, and "freeze" existing labor contracts.

Nelson was asked to appear before the house military affairs committee, investigating labor aspects in defense production Dr. J B Mathews, research director for the Dies un-American activities committee, was to testify before the same committee. He was armed with records alleging Communist influence in labor unions calling defense strikes.

House leaders have agreed to give both committees $25,000 each to press nationwide surveys of the preparedness work

Asserting that by the middle of the summer the army will be "assembled, housed, and in the full course of its training," and well on its way to being "fully equipped, Stimson said:

"I think I am speaking in measured language when I say that in no country in the world, including our own, has its military forces ever before been provided for in so brief a time and upon so adequate a scale for ministering to their necessities and comforts."

Throughout his testimony, Stimson emphasized that during the World war the army purchased a great deal of its equipment from France and England and that the defense program, as well as the aid to Britain program, presents an initial effort for complete preparedness "under pressure."

Her humorous reading will be "The Wizard of Oz."

Miss Van Wagner will compete in original oratory. Her reading will be "All Men Are Created Equal."

Shelby will also enter two other students because of the chapter's outstanding work in the league.

Chosen to fill the honorary posts are John Purdy, who will compete in dramatic declamation with "Submerged," and JoAnn Fish, who will give "You Can't Take It With You" as a reading in the humorous declamation division.

A Shelby student, Miss Betty Hart, will represent this district as a senator in the 'mock" student congress to be held in conjunction with the speech tournament. By Mr. Miller:

An Ordinance determining to proceed with the improvement of Bowman Street from The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks to the Erie Railroad tracks by widening and repaving the roadway with concrete, brick, sheet asphalt or other suitable material and constructing the necessary curbing, headers, storm drainage, etc. and authorizing the issuance and sale of bonds to pay for said improvement.

Be it Ordained by the Council of the City of Mansfield, State of Ohio, three-fourths of all members elected thereto concurring:

Sec. 1. That it is hereby determined to proceed with the improvement of Bowman Street from The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks to the Erie Railroad tracks by widening and repaving the roadway with concrete, brick, sheet asphalt or other suitable material and constructing the necessary curbing, headers, storm drainage, etc. in accordance with Resolution No. 41-22 passed February 4, 1941 and in accordance with the plans, specifications, estimates and profiles of said improvement heretofore approved and now on file in the office of the Department of Public Service of said city.

Sec. 2. That all claims for damages resulting therefrom shall be judicially inquired into after completion of the proposed improvement.

Sec. 3. BLAZE LEVELS HOLMES BARN

Frame Structure on Farm of Mrs. Allen Barnes Burns To Ground.

MILLERSBURG — Millersburg fire department answered three recent calls, two of which were grass fires and the third a barn on the farm of Mrs. Allen Barnes which burned to the ground.

A fire apparently originating in a haystack caught the barn ablaze and before the fire department arrived was beyond saving. However, they were able to save other buildings and the farm house.

The frame structure contained a corn huller and a thrasher outfit belonging to Calvin and William Wagers, and other machinery. The barn was covered by insurance and the Wager's machinery was valued at $800.

The grass fires were on the Quillen farm south of Millersburg when one entire hillside was aflame, and the other was at the Fred Bigler farm near Holmesville. A fire of unknown origin, set a woods afire and burned several feet of fence. The fire department prevented the spread to nearby buildings.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 15, 1941.

That new Japanese-Russian pact indicates that Stalin is determined to get along with everybody.

An Arizona chemist is working on the idea of extracting gold from the air—and a pension plan might be built up around such a notion.

The "until death do us part" section of the matrimonial formula seems to have been revised into, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

More Jobs for Older Men

A FINE THING in this re-employment wave is the way older men are going back to work. The Social Security Board reports that many men past sixty-five are back on jobs. And this after a prolonged period in which men twenty years younger were often turned down by employers as "too old to work."

Convincing evidence comes from grandfathers, who have been receiving old-age insurance payments, now writing to the social security offices to stop such payments because they have jobs again.

Another fine thing about this trend, too, is the way it answers the oft-repeated complaint that "when you once start pensioning people, they'll never work again." It is found in thousands of cases, and through a wide range of ages, that people living on public help which started in the depression years are nearly always glad to trade charity for earned pay if they can be reasonably sure the jobs will last.

An Appreciation of Mrs. Meese

EACH year a national selection is made of "a typical American mother," with the choice based on qualities which are regarded as representative of commonly accepted ideals of motherhood, translated into accomplishments.

It is impossible that all mothers who are worthy of such recognition can be accorded the honor associated with this selection and it is quite unlikely that those who are most deserving have any idea that they might be under consideration.

Had the choice of a "typical mother" been a local rather than a national activity it may be doubted if any more fitting choice could have been made in the Mansfield community than Mrs. Nancy Hughes Meese, whose departure from earthly life is now being mourned.

As a pastor's wife and as a mother, as well as in her contacts with others, her high sense of individual responsibility and community obligations, Mrs. Meese made as near an approach to perfection as is likely to be encountered in today's world.

Her passing also recalls the fine service which she and her husband, the late Rev. Dr. David J. Meese, performed during his 22-year pastorate at the First Presbyterian church, in which time an ideal home life provided a congenial atmosphere for rearing their children and gave opportunity for combining precept and example in a way that has carried an influence for good to many thousands of people all through the intervening years.

What appear as troublesome problems of life could be simply solved by universal application of the principles and practices of Dr. and Mrs. Meese.

Girl Scout Leaders Here

MANSFIELD is privileged today to entertain about one hundred and fifty Girl Scout leaders, who are here from all over northern Ohio for a conference in advance of contemplated summer activities.

Visitors include many troop and camp committee leaders and the day's program is being devoted largely to instruction, suggestions and discussion intended to increase interest and broaden the scope of organization work.

The Girl Scout movement in Mansfield has been fortunate in its leadership and in the steady growth it has enjoyed, with practically unlimited opportunities for the future.

Mansfield welcomes today's visitors as representatives of a movement designed to better each of the communities from which they come, and trusts that their day's sessions will be productive of lasting benefits.

Argentine Beef Wins OK

AS FAR as Pan-American relations are concerned, it is reassuring to find that the great canned beef battle is over, and the United States government is permitted by congress to buy a couple of shiploads of Argentine beef for use by our expanding army and navy.

This has been mostly an ideological argument, rather than a practical issue. For it is no longer true that such imports interfere with our American cattle and packing industries. Our cattle men themselves have quit opposing them as the market is big enough for all.

The main reason, however, for doing this, is to promote the friendship of Argentina, the most powerful nation in Latin-America. Beef is the principal product of that country, its beef is said to be as good as ours, and the Argentines have long been offended by our refusal to buy any of it.

The money we pay will make is possible for them to buy from us various goods that they need. As in many such cases, both sides seem to win.

War Changes Reading Trends

WAR abroad affects reading habits in America. The annual report of the New York City public library for the year 1940 reveals that the swiftly moving events of last summer caused a sharp decline in book circulation. Regular borrowers became so engrossed in following the news in newspapers that they didn't have time for books. In the fall, of course, the political campaign absorbed much public attention that might have been devoted to literature.

Certain changes appeared in the interests of persons who still turned to books for entertainment, solace or information. Use of German books rose while use of French books declined. That seems to have been the natural result of the arrival of many German-speaking refugees, as well as an effort to understand the Germans better. Italian reading slumped, but Spanish increased because of quickening interest in Latin-America.

Reading of history and biography has increased. Books on the theory of economics and government, capital and labor, lost ground a little, while books on industrial arts and everything related to defense preparations gained.

Character Crisis

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SOMETHING shuffled in the darkness by our parked car... thudded softly...clinked. A few yards down the hill, an ancient motor panted steadily. Simple noises in themselves, yet adding up to something sinister. I stepped outside.

There was a hurried scuffle, the clatter of an abandoned pail and hose. Three youngsters, the oldest seemingly not 18, raced for the idling car and were gone. Another attempt by penniless high school kids to siphon gas, the fourth in a month on our short street.

You read this indifferently. "Stealing gasoline isn't front page news," you say to yourself. "Boys like that have always raised Cain." BUT IT PROBABLY NEVER OCCURS TO YOU THAT YOUR CHERISHED TAD MAY BE "A BOY LIKE THAT." OTHER BOYS MAY STEAL, LIE, GANG UP IN WOLF PACKS . . . BUT NOT YOUR BOY. NOT YOURS!

Stop kidding yourselves, Mom and Dad! Whatever other youngsters are doing, yours may do. No matter how charming they are, no matter how brilliant, no matter how carefully trained in social tricks, they may—they will—be hoodlums at heart unless they've been given the one thing which will hold them fast against the looseness of our day. And that one thing can't be found in a textbook.

You wouldn't expect to find a sermon in a detective magazine, would you? Yet, surprising as it seems, that's exactly where they should be found—and where you'll find one that hits every home in America. "Can We Cure Crime?" by the Rev. Sidney W. Powell, D.D., pastor of the First Baptist church in St. Paul, Minn. There's no shilly-shallying about Dr. Powell.

A BAD BOY OR GIRL DOESN'T "JUST HAPPEN," he says, in effect. THE COMMUNITY STANDS CONDEMNED WITH THE CHILD. IT HAS BUILT UP FALSE IDEALS OF LUXURY WHICH ARE BOUND TO UNDERMINE CHARACTER UNLESS THEY ARE REINFORCED BY CHARACTER AND IDEALS.

But how many homes teach character? How many schools teach ideals? We have dramatic lessons, bridge lessons, tap dancing, badminton and beauty culture, but where do we have lessons or lectures in courage, honesty, loyalty, social responsibility?

Dr. Powell is not talking about panty-waist prudery. He's talking about something which every decent parent, jurist or educator in America desires and which we all fondly believe our own little darlings possess—old fashioned honesty and decency. But how many of them actually do possess it? How many of our city youngsters have any reverence for anything beyond their own desires, any regard save for the gratification of their immediate pleasure and vanity?

This doesn't mean that they're any worse than you or I were at their age. But it does mean that something was done about it when we were youngsters. Mom and Dad didn't sit back and sigh, "Oh well, kids will be kids," when Jimmy "borrowed" a neighbor's car and ended up in the emergency, or when 15-year-old sister stayed out until midnight at the nearest juke joint. They realized that "kids will be kids" but they also realized that it was up to "parents to be parents" and give Jimmy and sister some semblance of spiritual values and a civilized viewpoint. Or be put on the spot themselves.

You can't expect a youngster to develop a fine character spontaneously any more than you can expect him to develop stout bones, strong muscles, healthy blood without guidance. He must be fed principles as he must be fed food. And no amount of charm, social poise or smarty-pant shrewdness, can be a substitute.

"THE GREATEST CRISIS IN AMERICA TODAY IS A CRISIS IN CHARACTER," says Dr. Powell and never was there a truer word spoken concerning national defense. We're spending incredible billions on equipment. And there's no doubt but that Young America's nimble fingers will learn quickly to handle that equipment.

BUT HAVE THEY WHAT IT TAKES TO HONOR LIFE AS WELL AS DISPATCH DEATH? HAVE THEY LEARNED THAT THERE ARE NOBLER THINGS IN LIFE THAN GUN-SIGHTS AND TANKS? AND WHOSE FAULT IS IT IF THEY HAVEN'T?

Timely Editorial

Loan Rates Should Be Cut.

There are 15 states with laws setting a lower maximum small-loan rate than Ohio. A bill is now pending in the Ohio legislature to reduce the charges for such loans in this state. Ohio should make that reduction.

The hearings on this Phillips loan bill held by the senate committee on banks and loan associations indicate that changes probably should be made in the draft as it now stands. It will be up for committee hearing in the house soon. Ambiguities have been pointed out and are now in process of correction.

The merits of the proposal are these: The rates would be lowered for borrowers. The size of loans would be regulated. The terms for loans would also be restricted. These are regulations which actually are for the benefit of borrowers who depend upon this service. The loan companies favoring the legislation seem to have better arguments for their position than those opposing it.—Toledo Blade.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

40 Norse Ships In French Africa, Owners Seek Purchase By U. S.

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Most people don't know it, but with the democratic world hungry for ships, about 40 Norwegian vessels are in French African ports with the British unable to put their hands on them.

Around this revolves a highly interesting story, which involves a fight between the president's famous ex-brain-truster, Tom Corcoran, and Sol Rosenblatt, counsel for the Democratic national committee. Both Corcoran and Rosenblatt, now private attorneys, have been trying to pry the ships loose, but got into a lawyer's row while doing so.

The British haven't been able to get these vitally important ships because the Norwegians don't want to give them up. Norwegian shippers point out that most of their ships already are under the Union Jack, that they aren't getting paid in ready cash, and that more Norwegian seamen now work for the British than there are sailors in the British merchant marine.

Therefore, the Norwegians want to sell these vessels to the United States for operation in Western Hemisphere waters, and their attorney, Harold Deming, has been working to this end—with no success.

* * *

Democrat vs. Democrat.

SO SOL ROSENBLATT was brought into the picture by Thomas Olsen of New York, a member of the Norwegian Shipping commission.

Sol came to Washington and had a talk with the president, during which he proposed that the United States buy the Norwegian ships in North Africa for use in American waters. Subsequently Rosenblatt wrote a letter to Jack Dempsey, maritime commissioner, to the effect that the president had virtually directed that the Norwegian ships be purchased by the Maritime commission.

This letter, giving the impression that the president of the United States was sending orders to the Maritime commission through a Democratic lawyer, caused a rumpus which had wide reverberations.

There were reverberations inside the Maritime commission where Admiral Land, the chairman, took the matter up with the president.

And there were even more violent reverberations in circles outside the commission—namely in the breast of Thomas G. Corcoran, one-time braintruster, who is now a Democratic lawyer.

Democratic lawyer Corcoran protested vigorously at the tactics of Democratic lawyer Rosenblatt. No one, he told Maritime friends, had a right to take liberties with the president's word.

Some of these friends marveled at the Corcoran wrath, remembering how for many years he himself had quoted the president. Later, they discovered that Tom was close to Harold Deming, the other lawyer for the Norwegian shipping commission.

Note—All-important objects of this lawyers' row, the much-needed Norwegian ships, still are in French Africa, with Germany fast encroaching on that area. Sol Rosenblatt finally was told by the Maritime commission that the ships could not be purchased by the U. S. A. because they lacked proper baths and toilet facilities for American crews under the La Follette act.

One-Woman Monopoly.

NO MAN in the history of the U. S. A. —not even Teddy Roosevelt—has done more to break up monopoly than Assistant General Thurman Arnold. He has indicted aluminum, motion-picture, oil, and dairy corporations; labor unions, even farm and medical organizations.

The other day, while attending a crowded cocktail party, Mr. Arnold was standing beside a beautiful young lady.

"I wish," he said, "that you and I were on a desert island."

"That," remarked Ernest Cuneo, "is a fine statement from one who has sworn death to monopoly."

"Out of the Night."

JAN VALTIN, reformed Communist author of "Out of the Night," has offered to make an interesting wager with Ralph Ingersoll, publisher of the New York newspaper PM.

Ingersoll's paper has claimed that parts of the best-selling autobiography were pure fiction, and has argued that if Valtin were whipped in the manner described in his book, there would be scars on his face. To this, Valtin made the following proposal through his attorney, Morris Ernst:

"Tell Ingersoll to put up $1,000, and I will let anyone he chooses lash my face thirty times—first however, wetting it. After two months, if there is a scar on my face he gets back the $1,000. If there is no scar I keep the $1,000."

Note—New York police say that if the skin is wet before administering lashes, scars eventually heal. This is the practice of the Nazi Gestapo.

Banker Lobby.

THE investment banking lobby, one of the most agile, is operating in high gear again. Members of congress are being bombarded by their silk stocking constituents with complaints because the Securities and Exchange commission has ordered competitive bidding on public utility stock issues.

Competition may sound reasonable enough, since that's the way most business is done, but the big Eastern investment bankers don't like it—for a very special reason. It jeopardizes their control of the huge utility holding companies.

If other investment bankers can come in and bid on the financing of these companies, there isn't much gravy left for Wall Street. They prefer private deals made behind closed doors. The utilities might get better terms under competitive bidding, but the inside bankers are primarily concerned with keeping their dominant position.

In the Holding Company act, congress directed the SEC to break up these banker controls, and recently, after several years of backing and filling, the SEC cracked the whip. The big investment boys hurriedly reassembled their lobby, but so far the pressure drive doesn't seem to be getting anywhere. Most congressmen see nothing wrong with a law that means lower electric rates for consumers and greater safety for investors.

Merry-Go-Round.

FRENCH Ambassador Henry-Haye is telling Frenchmen in this country that they'd better get back home soon, or it will be too late. Apparently, the ambassador believes the United States will not stop "short of war" . . . Gardner Jackson, who broke from John L. Lewis' Labor's Non-Partisan League over Roosevelt, is suing The Saturday Evening Post and Ben Stolberg for calling him a "Stalinist." Jackson's father, wealthy Colorado pioneer, built the Denver and Rio Grande railroad.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Wild geese flying are a sight rarely vouchsafed to city dwellers. But New Yorkers have their own harbingers of the season. Most unfailing of these are the migratory horse players, followers of the sun. Now they are back from the Florida horse parks, tanned and insolvent, faced with their annual spring crisis of promoting a new spring suit and a ticket to the Kentucky Derby at Louisville.

This group is perhaps the most compact unit in the Broadway community. They live in a pure communist state, insofar as that state is share and share alike. When one is broke all are. When one enjoys a windfall, there is a measure of folding money for all. This is because their revenue is produced by red hot tips at the track, and they pass these around. That also accounts for their common poverty. When the tips fail them, panic ensues.

JUST where this clique gets its operating money is one of the town's most impenetrable mysteries. Invariably they finish the New York season penniless. Yet, a week later you will find them on the lawn of the Pimlico clubhouse in Baltimore. Several weeks after that they will be part of the Miami winter colony, lounging at the Roney-Plaza's swimming pool in the morning, and storming the mutuel windows at Hialeah and Tropical in the afternoon.

Few of them work, although on occasions one will accept a job that gives them the afternoon off. Mostly they attach themselves to free-spenders and dispense inside information on horses in payment for a winning ticket. Movie stars, won to racing with the legalization of the sport in California, are generous patrons of these gypsy-like creatures. It is no uncommon sight at Belmont or Saratoga to behold a Hollywood celebrity, taking the sun, being administered to by these eager courtiers. One will arrive to whisper excitedly that such a number of $100 tickets have been sold on a certain horse. Scouting the $100 window is an easy way to impress a newcomer, but insiders know it means nothing. The wise money patronizes the less aristocratic booths. It is just as easy to buy twenty $5 tickets as a single $100 slip.

ACTUALLY, these givers of information render nobody any great service. They are invariably backers of the race's favorite—"chalk eaters," in the parlance of the turf—and they have only to glance at the mutuel listings to know which horse is favored. Their fury when the favorite is beaten is fierce and personal, and their contempt for a happy-go-luck plunger who picks a long shot is measureless. They are personally affronted every time a long shot wins.

There are some picturesque characters among these de luxe vagabonds. One maintains a Rolls Royce and a colored valet. The valet transports the car to the tracks, employing his own resources to get gas, oil and his own meals. The master usually makes the journey as the guest of some beneficent stable-owner. There is still another whose boast is that he never has attended the Derby other than by private car. Needless to mention, the car is always chartered by another. Still a third thrives on snobbery. He refuses to serve anybody who fails to measure up to his standards of sportiness. It is surprising to notice how many vainglorious public figures count it a distinction to give him their money.

There they are, the wild geese of Manhattan.

A Farmer's Diary

Orphan Colt

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TRAGEDY was in my neighbor's barn last night. When I went to see him on an errand I found him and his son doing the evening chores. As we stood in the barn door visiting a high-pitched whinner came from across the barn.

"Why you have a baby colt!" I said.

"Yes," he hesitated regretfully—"the gray mare died afoaling. We found her this morning. The colt's all right. Go over through the entry and see it."

I needed no second invitation, but hurried through the darkened corridor, sweet and fragrant still with last year's clover hay. In the stall farthest south stood a lonely little wobbly colt. He was the color of moleskin except a white start on his forehead and white stockings just above the little hoofs. He appeared very small within so large a stall.

I held my hand out across the manger. Shyly and very hesitantly he came from the darkest corner to investigate. He was not afraid but came up close and placed his soft black nose in my hand and began to lick my palm with his broad pink tongue. I was happy for his confidence. None had ever yet done him harm. He knew no enemies, not even flies.

Then I put my face across the manger. Quickly the cunning baby poked his tender velvety nose against by check and I caressed the dark young muzzle with my hands. His little heart longed for the companionship he had never known. A fond mother tongue will never smooth his silky coat—nor nip him playfully on the temping rump while he is feeding. No one is here to watch with pride as he sleeps at night upon his bed of straw.

When he is old enough to romp in circles about the meadow pasture, until his black hoofs are drenched in the dewy grass, no mother who understands will meet him on his return.

My neighbor had come up. We exchanged glances.

"Does he eat all right?" I asked.

"Yes—a popbottle full of warm milk every two hours. I believe he'll get along."

"....Too Rich for whose Blood?"

HAVE YOU EVER HEARD anyone say about Pontiac, "Yes, it's a fine car, all right. Big, good-looking, easy to handle. But it's too rich for my blood"?

If and when you hear such a statement, you can be sure of one thing. The man who's talking has never owned a Pontiac.

As a matter of fact, both buying and driving a Pontiac are much less expensive than most people realize.

Pontiac prices are so close to the lowest that the difference in monthly payments is almost unbelievably small.

And many owners claim that they operate their Pontiacs for less than they formerly spent on much smaller cars.

Before you decide that a new Pontiac "Torpedo" is too rich for your blood, we suggest that you talk to a Pontiac owner who formerly drove a lowest-priced car. Then see your Pontiac dealer and ride in one, drive it—and get all the facts and figures which prove that, if you can afford any new car you can afford a Pontiac!

IMPROVEMENTS FOR ROUTE 42 SEEN POSSIBLE

State Prepares to Condition Defense Highway; Mayor Gets Cost Estimates.

Mansfield streets forming part of U. S. Route 42 may undergo improvement this summer as part of one of the most important roads in the Ohio strategic military network.

State Highway Director Hal G. Sours yesterday instructed division engineers to submit reports on posible highway improvements in villages and municipalities located on important defense highways.

Mayor William J. Locke said that he had already conferred with Vance Grimes, highway division engineer, on posible improvement of city streets in connection with the defense program. Grimes supplied the mayor with estimates showing that $20,600 would be needed to resurface Park avenue east, the streets around Central park, South Main and Lexington avenue as far as Cline.

Grimes said that this estimate would cover the cost of laying two coats of black top surface. The greater part of the cost would be paid by the federal government as a defense project.

Skeletonized estimates and plans will be submitted soon to WPA officials, Sours said. He added that work probably would begin immediately after approval was granted in Washington late this spring.

The mayor pointed out that although Route 30 also has been designated as a defense highway that the city's recent improvement of Fourth street makes the route adequate for military needs.

The state defense highways would probably be developed to facilitate movement of troops in times of emergency. Last Friday, Mansfield got a preview of such movements when 500 soldiers en route from Fort Knox, Ky., to Pine Camp, N. Y., passed through the city on Route 42. If an emergency were declared, use of the defense highways probably would be restricted.

The stupendous scale on which Wesley Ruggles filmed "Arizona," saga of the old southwest's most exciting era, playing at the Park, is best sensed by glancing at a few statistics. Speaking parts were carried by 146 players while atmosphere roles utilized 2,500 people. Thousands of range cattle and animals, were corralled and veritable arsenals of old-time warfare were set up. Jean Arthur, William Holden and Warren Williams head the cast. "Ellery Queen Master Detective," is the second picture.

CHAPTER XXVI

"Do you think you can make it, honey?" Paul asked Joan, looking anxiously into her white face. "I'll go first and you follow me."

Tremulously Joan obeyed. The ladder swayed with her weight and the rope scraped her hands as she grasped it fiercely. Step by step she went down until at last she felt Phil's arms lifting her to safety.

Thomas loosened the rope that held them to the ship. "This won't work, Mr. O'Malley. They'll shoot us like dogs. We haven't a chance."

But he was wrong. They rowed away unmolested. The ship was like a ghost, not one of the crew was in sight. The freighter disappeared from view. The sea was calm in spite of the rain. Joan found a scarf in her pocket and tied it about her head. Paul wrapped his overcoat around her and she curled up with her head on the seat. She was too exhausted to speak or think or care where they were going or what tomorrow held. Fatigue held her prisoner and with her head buried in her arms she fell into a deep sleep . . . .

When she awoke it was to brilliant sunshine streaming from a blue cloudless sky. Her muscles were stiff and cramped.

Paul watched her, smiling "Feel better?"

She sat up and stretched her aching back. 'I don't know how I could have slept like that."

"If you want the truth," Paul grinned, "I put a sleeping powder in your tea late yesterday afternoon. I figured on something like this."

"Paul you didn't!" she cried exasperated.

"I most certainly did and for your own good. Too bad it didn't take effect before you shot Karl."

"Karl!"

Paul looked from Joan to Thomas. "Now listen, both of you. This may be something of a shock but Karl was not dead. He had a nasty wound but he's probably still very much alive.'

Thomas looked terror-stricken. "Then he'll find us."

"We were allowed an escape from that ship for a purpose. We will doubtless be picked up by other members of the ring as soon as we land We're off the coast of Mexico now About Mazatlan, if my calculations are correct."

"We'de be safer on the ship," Thomas prophesied gloomily

"That," Paul said cheerfully, "remains to be seen."

Less than an hour later they were picked up by a fishing boat and landed at Mazatlan.

Joan stretched her tired body, thankful to have firm ground under her feet again. She looked around curiously. Mazatlan was like a small piece of another world, basking peacefully under balmy skies. The Mexicans lounged in the parks and streets and eyed the Americans with obvious curiosity. The white buildings were crowded against each other in the narrow streets. A white sandy beach stretched magnificently along one side of the town. Feathery palm trees were graceful outlines against the sky. There were a few automobiles but for the most part horse-drawn carts rattled down the streets.

Thomas surveyed all this unhappily. "Now what?" he asked Paul with the air of one who is resigned to the worst He glanced around apprehensively as if he expected Karl's men to appear any moment and whisk him away.

But there was no hint of unpleasantness as they bumped over the cobblestone streets to the hotel. Dark eyes watched them from the sidewalks Barefoot children and beggars huddled silently at the market place. It was a town of lush tropical beauty, sweet warm air and a tranquil silence broken only by the rattling carts and the musical chatter of Spanish.

The hotel proved to be old and magnificent, with beautiful tiled floors and high-beamed ceilings and ramps instead of stairways. It appeared practically deserted except for the yawning clerk who assigned them to their rooms.

Joan was surprised that Paul spoke Spanish. "Is there anything you can't do?" she asked as they walked up the ramp followed by the unwilling Thomas.

"I specialized in languages in college and it comes in handy with my job. I never know where I'll be next."

Joan felt better after a hot bath. She brushed her hair and coiled it in a low knot on the nape of her neck for the sake of coolness. The sea air surprisingly removed the wrinkles from her dress and when she joined Paul and Thomas in the dining room she felt refreshed and almost cheerful.

"Under different circumstances," she told Paul, "I could really enjoy this place It seems to be entirely isolated from the world we know."

"The big ships used to stop here and it was quite a tourist spot, but they haven't done that for a good many years and now not many Americans come here. It's too placid; not enough excitement for them."

Joan enjoyed her first taste of papaya and the oversized cups of coffeee served with hot milk and huge lumps of unrefined sugar. "No wonder everyone seems so lazy. Nothing to do but eat and sleep and breathe this heavenly air."

"When I retire," Paul laughed, "We'll come back here and have a real vacation."

Thomas looked up in disgust. 'Sometimes I think you two are nuts. You sit there and wait for Karl's gang to come after you as if the whole thing is a joke. I don't get it. Why don't we get out of here right now while we still have a chance?"

"If you tried it, you'd find out how much chance you have."

"Where are they then?" Thomas demanded.

"Don't be impatient They'll be with us soon enough."

But when Thomas had gone back to his room and Joan and Paul walked in the tropical garden patio of the hotel, she said seriously, "Thomas is right, Paul. Why don't we leave before it's too late?"

"This is the end of the trail, honey. Even if they let us get away, which they won't, what would we have gained? Their next move will lead to the heart of this affair. It's what I've been waiting for all these months."

She sighed. "I suppose you're right But I wish it would happen quickly. I'm like Thomas, I guess. I can't stand the waiting."

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Wife Got FAT— No Longer Attractive LOST HUSBAND'S LOVE

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper in connection with a divorce trial that had attracted wide attention. "She was a beautiful woman" one witness testified "but she got fat and is not attractive any more."

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do. If you are fat, how would you like to lose some of it and at the same time gain in physical charm and attractiveness—more energy—greater activity?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take ½ teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts (a famous English formula) in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for thirty days. Cut out pastries and fatty meats and go light on white bread, potatoes butter and cream Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts will last you for 4 weeks and costs but little. Ask any druggist for a bottle of Kruschen, plain or new effervescent—sparkling—pleasant—and start today to lose fat Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.

Juvenile Bureau To Study Case of 'Problem Child'

A 13-year-old Butler youth who confessed the theft of a car in Butler last Tuesday was ordered to the bureau of juvenile research in Columbus yesterday by Judge Stuart H. Cramer in county juvenile court.

Juvenile Officer Ralph Carroll said he would take the youth to Columbus Thursday. The boy is in the county detention home.

The youth admitted yesterday that he took the automobile which belonged to A. M. Weekley, Butler garageman, drove it to Mansfield without license plates, and equipped it with plates he took from another car here.

He drove it in Knox and Morrow counties for three days before returning to Bellville where the car was recovered by Sheriff Frank E. Robinson. The boy eluded officers in Bellville, but his aunt turned him over to the sheriff the following day after the young fugitive came back to Mansfield.

The youth, considered a "problem child" by Judge Cramer, will be studied at the research bureau for about eight weeks. The bureau will then make recommendations to the court here for disposition of the case.
